March Message from the Grand Commander

Sir Knights,

This is my final newsletter article as your Grand Commander. It has been an honor and a pleasure serving you. I thank you for the confidence you have had in me to give me this opportunity. I look forward to continuing to be able to serve Templary in the future.

I want to celebrate two Romano-British saints whose feast days are this month. The one everyone knows about is Saint Patrick, whose feast is March 17th. Patrick was born in fifth-century post-Roman Britain into a Christian family. His writings tell us that at age sixteen, he was captured by Irish pirates and enslaved in Ireland for six years. He then escaped and made his way back home. He felt a call to go back to Ireland as a missionary to the very people who had enslaved him. As they say, the rest is history. His missionary zeal and love for his enemies are certainly worthy of our emulation.

Slightly later was Saint David of Wales, whose feast day is March 1st. He was bishop of Mynyw, or Menevia, in Wales, and head of a monastery. He was known as Dewi Dyfrwr, or David the water man, because he required his monks to drink only water. They ate only bread and vegetables. They plowed their fields with plows that they pulled themselves. Among his last words were, "Do the little things that you have seen me do and heard about." Doing the necessary little things makes it possible for us to do great things.

Our Grand Conclave this year is on another feast day: March 25th, Annunciation Day. This is the day when we remember the angel Gabriel's announcement to Mary that she would bear Jesus. Let us all be there at the Grand Conclave to carry on our Templar work and prepare for the next Templar year. I will be sending out a General Order soon about the extra pageantry we will have for the opening of the Grand Conclave.

Again, thank you for the honor and privilege of serving you during this Templar year. I hear that the Grand Lodge hotel is full, but there is room at our Grand York Rite hotel. If you have not registered and made your hotel reservations yet, I encourage you to do so now. See you in Nashville!

Courteously,
John Simmons REGC TN

A Confession

Sir Knights,

There is something I want you to know before we begin our 2025-2026 Grand Commandery year, before you come to the Grand Commandery session in March. About four years ago, I was approached by some of our Knights and asked if I would allow my name to be placed in nomination for the office of Grand Captain General in our Grand Commandery. I did not answer at first. I had to think about it for a month or two first. I eventually responded "yes," and I want you to know why before you attend our March session.

I did not respond "yes" because I wanted to be Grand Commander. I know that some of you are thinking that statement is a lie, and I know that nothing I can say will change your minds. I do, however, want all of you to know the real reason I answered "yes" before you make a decision about who your new Grand Commander will be in March. You may not like my motives at all.

I have been blessed to have had the opportunity to have had a close and realistic look at our order from the local, the state, the national, and the international perspective for the last fifteen years. Several years ago, I came to the conclusion that our order is rapidly approaching extinction in this country. If you look at this closely, you will find that this is not because young men do not want to become Templars. They are still joining in significant numbers. The reason our numbers are declining is that men are joining, taking a look from the inside, and then deciding that what they see is not what they were expecting, so they are leaving the order in greater numbers than they are joining.

Having come to this conclusion, I looked deeper into the problem and decided these men who were leaving were doing so for very good reasons. As an organization, we have gradually, over many years, lost our way, our sense of purpose. Without a shared sense of what we are about, any group of men will begin to imagine for themselves, individually, what the purpose of the order is and will begin to pull in different directions. Eventually, the organization loses focus, slows down, and simply sits there and accomplishes nothing. I believe that our modern Templar Order once had a noble and worthwhile sense of purpose and thrived as a result, becoming very successful at accomplishing our mission. I also believe that many, if not most, of our current Knights do not share any common purpose at all. Fewer than ten percent of us are holding the order together.

The reason I answered “yes” to the original question is because I thought that I might have a better chance to exert influence to reverse this trend and to start a crusade to restore our Templar values and mission if I were on the inside rather than on the outside. As is obvious, I was elected and immediately blessed with the best of all circumstances. I found a core of elected Grand officers who recognized the reality that I had seen and who were willing to devote, sacrificially, their time, resources, effort, and even egos to work together as a team to turn our order around in Tennessee. We immediately began to change our “corporate culture” and to work as a team rather than as a hierarchy. We hammered out a mission statement and a vision statement that expressed our personal opinions about why Templary exists and why it is so vitally important to the communities in which we live. We began to develop programs or courses of action that might help us unify and turn our order around in Tennessee.

As the years passed, new Grand Officers came on board, and a miracle happened. We found that these Knights shared our vision and jumped on board to help. During the past three years, we have refined these plans and implemented some of them. We have identified and recruited a significant number of our bright new Knights to be key members on our team as committee members and appointed officers. We are now on the brink of finding out whether we will succeed.

What I had planned to accomplish, personally, is now largely complete, and I anticipate that, if you choose for me to be your Grand Commander this coming Templar year, I will spend most of the year turning over the work that I have been personally doing to younger and more capable hands to continue. I have contributed what I can contribute, and although I will be happy to continue to assist with any remaining task work in the future, my work is essentially done. I have had my chance.

Our society is deteriorating at an accelerating rate. We need strong, courageous Christian men if we are to cure the culture we live in. Our order is modeled on the ideal of a Christian Knight who is courageous, strong, committed, moral, dedicated to excellence in everything he does, and willing to take action and work with other like-minded Knights to develop an internal, organizational culture that is necessary to bring about positive change in our nation. We need to restore manhood to America. I can think of no organization that is better philosophically prepared to accomplish this task. We need not look for instant gratification. The positive change we need to trigger will take an inter-generational sustained effort. So, we must continue to chip away until we succeed or until the Master comes.

Grand Masters' Sword

DePayens Commandery No. 11 in Franklin, Tennessee, has commissioned and procured a sword, hereafter to be known as the "Grand Masters' Sword." It is intended to be a "traveling sword" that will move from Commandery to Commandery in Tennessee. It is currently displayed at DePayens Commandery. Any Commandery in Tennessee may take possession of this sword by sending a minimum of two Knights to visit any meeting of DePayens Commandery. The Sword is ornamented with the seal of the Ancient Templars having the name of Hugh DePayens, the first Grand Master of the Ancient Templars, engraved on one side of the blade and the name of Jacques DeMolay, the last Grand Master of the Ancient Templars, engraved on the other.

The sword is accompanied by a leather-bound journal, having the seal of the Ancient Templars engraved on the leather cover. As the sword moves from Commandery to Commandery, the date and name of the Commandery acquiring the sword will be entered into the journal.

The rules governing the movement of the sword from Commandery to Commandery are as follows:

- At least two Sir Knights from a Commandery must visit the Commandery in current possession of the sword in order to take it back to their Commandery.
- If a visiting Knight is a plural member of the Commandery in current possession of the sword, he does not count as one of the visiting Knights.
- If a visiting Knight is a plural member of two visiting Commanderies, he must count for both visiting Commanderies.
- The meeting of the Commandery in current possession of the sword counts even if the Commandery in current possession of the sword does not open or does not have nine members present.

- Stated meetings, called meetings, observances, conferrals, fellowships, fundraisers, educational meetings, and inspections all count.
- If at least two members each of more than one visiting Commandery attend, the Commandery with the highest score receives the sword. The score is calculated by multiplying the number of qualifying visiting Knights from a Commandery by the distance factor on the chart contained in the envelope in the back of the journal.
- The date and name of the receiving Commandery shall be recorded in the journal by the Recorder of the Commandery from which it is taken before the Knights from the receiving Commandery take possession of the sword.

As soon as the sword is transferred from one Commandery to another, the Editor of the Tennessee Knight Templar News shall be notified by the Commandery from which the sword was transferred, and all known future meeting dates and times of the receiving Commandery's meetings of any kind will be published until the sword moves again.

The intent is to encourage inter-visitation and fellowship among Tennessee Templars.

DePayens Commandery meets in stated communication beginning with dinner every 2nd Monday night. The only other meetings currently on its calendar are the Holy Land Pilgrimage Fund Raiser on Saturday, August 16th at 6:00 PM and the annual inspection on Saturday, November 1st, beginning with dinner at 6:00 PM.

Come and get it!

Prelates Devotion for March

A few years ago, I was getting my Templar ring sized and decided while I was at our family jeweler that my wedding ring needed to be cleaned and polished as well. I went to pick them up, and somehow my wedding ring fell out of my pocket. I went back later that day and the next day and searched the parking lot for that ring for hours, to no avail.

Understandably, I went home depressed and talked to my wife about what had happened. In tears, I mourned for my lost ring. I know it might sound strange, as the ring itself was not overly expensive, but I actually found myself in a time of mourning. My wife and I decided to buy another one, and I started thinking of what I wanted my new ring to look like. We got our grand plans together and started gathering prices. That very week, I was talking to my friend, who just happened to have an extra wedding ring. By some miracle, it was exactly what my wife and I had in mind, and it fit as well.

The story does not end there. About a month later, I was in line at my favorite deli about to order my lunch, and the two people in front of me were clearly newlyweds and very much in love. I looked down at the man's finger, and there was my ring. I asked him where he got it, and he said, "Well, we were at the jewelers and were going to buy our rings, but we did not have much money, so we were going to skimp. I looked down as we were getting out of the car, and found this ring on the ground. We were able to spend the money we saved to get my wife the ring she wanted." I nodded my head, feeling anger come over me, but then he looked at me and said, "God has really blessed us that some idiot lost his wedding ring." I simply nodded and replied, "Wear it in good health."

Luke 15:8-10 "Or what woman, having ten silver coins, if she loses one coin, does not light a lamp and sweep the house and seek diligently until she finds it? And when she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found the coin that I had lost.' Just so, I tell you, there is joy before the angels of God over one sinner who repents."

I wanted to tell this guy that I was the idiot that lost his ring; I wanted to rip it off his finger; I wanted my ring back, but God wanted to bless me and him at the same time. God wanted to provide for them and me at the same time. Like the woman, I found my lost treasure after searching for it, but unlike the woman, the treasure was no longer mine. I asked myself, "Was it ever really mine?" After all, the ring I wear now is not mine but my friend's. I gave this man my ring because a ring was given to me. What is it I have that is not a gift from God?

This is my last Prelate's devotion. This past year has been a gift from God, and each of you has been a gift from God. I have been so blessed this year to serve as Eminent Grand Prelate, and I am very thankful Eminent Grand Commander John Simmons asked me to be his Prelate. It has been a gift, a blessing, and an honor to serve the Grand Commandery of Tennessee.

I will encourage you to look at the hours of your life like treasure. Do not spend the hours gaining things that will rot. Spend the hours searching for the true treasure that will never become dust. The treasure of wisdom, the treasure of your salvation, and the treasure of your faith through grace. Spend your hours searching for them like they are precious rings or lost coins. Spend the fleeting hours of your life searching for others who are in darkness, like the lost coin and lost ring. When found, there is joy before the angels of God. I will leave you all with this simple proverb: Spend the hours of your life serving others, and you will always be remembered. Spend the hours of your life serving yourself, and you will be forgotten. The treasured hours are passing, so use them well.

God bless you all.

Code Proposals

Code Proposal #1

Proposing to change Article XXVII – Conclaves Section 128.

Change to read:

A Commandery may not convene a stated Conclave at an hour different from that prescribed by its bylaws and the time of meeting therein prescribed may be changed only by an amendment hereto, regularly made, with the following exceptions: When the stated meeting of a Commandery falls on any nationally designated holiday, Christmas Eve, the dates of the annual meetings of the Masonic Grand Bodies of Tennessee or the date of the annual inspection, by action of the Commandery at a prior stated Conclave, the conflicting stated Conclave may be held on any week day within the period beginning not more than five days before and ending not more than five days after the regular date, at the same hour designated in its bylaws for stated Conclaves, provided all resident members are notified in the usual manner of the change at least one week prior to the date on which the Conclave is to be held. If a Commandery fails to hold a stated conclave the minutes of the next stated Conclave held should show why.

Reasoning to bring the Grand Commandery Code in line with the Grand Lodge of TN Code and prevent the requirement of requesting a dispensation to move to a stated Conclave.

Proposed by Quentin Bolden PC, John Palmer PC, VEDGC
